PERSONAL LEARNING PLAN

DOORWAY INFORMATION

You have just completed 5 simulations and received feedback from the standardized station participant or viewed an example of something you were asked to create. This last station provides time for you to think through this PF-SIM experience and create a self-assessment of the strengths and weaknesses this experience brought to light. It provides a time for you to reflect and do some planning on how to improve and what resources you could access to facilitate that improvement during remaining clerkship time and into your next clerkship experiences.

The Personal Learning Plan document is part of an organized approach to meeting your professional goals and aspirations. It may be used as a part of mid-clerkship activities or anytime during your clerkships to provide fuel for discussions with clerkship directors and faculty.

The College’s SCRIPT Competencies

The College of Human Medicine uses the SCRIPT competency framework:
Service (not relevant to PF-SIMS experiences)
Care of Patients
Rationality
Integration
Professionalism
Transformation

Your Personal Learning Plan (PLP) document is organized by SCRIPT competencies. A copy of the SCRIPT competency framework is included in your station resources.

Your TASKS for this station are:

1. Look over the CHM SCRIPT Competency Standards document
2. Think through the PF-SIM stations and the feedback you received after each one.
3. List your STRENGTHS by SCRIPT competency—as many as you can
4. List your thoughts on what you can IMPROVE by SCRIPT competency—as many as you can
5. Craft a PLAN on how you can address necessary improvements by SCRIPT competency
